

ILG Summer Clerk 2014 Application

Learn for social justice. Advocate for social justice. Litigate for social justice.

Each summer, ILG sponsors a summer clerk to work with the firm in advancing the human rights of immigrants and refugees. The clerkship provides an opportunity for law students to work directly with clients and get hands-on experience with impact litigation. Past clerks worked on nationwide-precedent setting cases, engaged in civil rights litigation on detainers, represented asylum-seekers and special immigrant juveniles, and provided inspiring community-education workshops on going beyond just knowing one's rights. Learn more about former projects here.

The Summer Clerkship is a paid, temporary position lasting at least 10 weeks. The start date is usually in mid-June. The length of the position and start dates are flexible. Clerks can expect to work full-time. Housing and moving expenses are the clerk's responsibility.

The deadline for applications is November 23, 2013 at midnight, PST. All the details are available below.

Application submission instructions

We try to make this process straightforward and not super-time consuming but rigorous enough so we can get the critical information we need from each applicant. If you have questions about the submission process, email them to jobs@ilgrp.com

Gather these things together:

- (a) An ILG Job Application Form (available on our website)
- (b) A law school transcript (unofficial or official, it doesn't matter)
- (c) A resume (the resume does not need to adhere to our general resume guidelines; it should, however, be as complete as possible)
- (d) A writing sample – it should be your own work and words written during your law school tenure.
- (e) Email (a), (b), (c), and (d) in PDF format to jobs@ilgrp.com by midnight PST November 23, 2013.

Things happen quickly after submission. We anticipate conducting interviews and making an offer by December 13.
